TRAVEL ALLOWANCE ON DISCHARGE.

The Bureau is in receipt of an increasingly large number of claims from enlisted men for payment of travel allowance upon discharge.

Many of the claims are for travel allowance in cases where men were discharged (other than those transferred to receiving ships or receiving stations for discharge), and immediately re-enlisted on board but who have been required to waive all travel allowance in excess of that involved from the receiving ship or receiving station nearest to the place of acceptance for current enlistment to the place of acceptance for current enlistment. The waivers should have been cancelled and the men should have been paid the full allowance from place of discharge to place of acceptance for current enlistment.

Other claims are from men who did not desire to re-enlist but did desire to be discharged on their present ship or station and who were paid no travel allowance at all. In most of these cases the men should have been paid travel allowance from the receiving ship or receiving station nearest to the place of acceptance for current enlistment to the place of acceptance for current enlistment.

It is believed that strict compliance with the provisions of Bureau of Navigation Manual, Article D-7019, would eliminate to a considerable extent the submission of unnecessary claims.
